The Vizianagaram Hall is built in the Indo- Saracenic style that was developed in the late 19th century by the British architects in India. It is a bold mix of the Mughal style of India and the neo-Gothic style of Europe. The opulence of the Mughal comes together with the Gothic style reminiscent of the age when prosperity was at its height. The large stained glass windows, the pointed arches, the ribbed vaults and the ornate intricate decorations are an awe-inspiring display of grandeur. The slender columns and lighter systems of thrust allow more light making a dazzling display of colour as the sun beams strike on the tinted glasses. Almost every surface of the prestigious Vizianagaram Hall is decorated. The minaret and the glazed-tile dome stand in a perfect symmetry and balance. The rich colour of the dome draws the gaze to its majestic presence while the top of the minaret offers a panoramic view of the town. The design speaks of an exuberance and a pride in culture. The building with its elegant and rich architecture overlooks a garden laid with seven fountains. The building stands in all its glory at the epicenter of the Science Faculty of the University of Allahabad.
